

J.T. Schiltz is a Managing Partner at Transcend, overseeing a portfolio of work that centers on high school redesign and postsecondary pathways. Since 2019, she has supported PK-12 communities across the country to reimagine school, focusing on facilitating community-based design journeys to develop cohesive whole school models that make Leaps and yield extraordinary and equitable experiences and outcomes for young people.

Before coming to Transcend, JT spent 14 years with Uncommon Schools, a charter management organization (CMO) serving (at the time) 19,000 students in the Northeast, as a Special Education teacher, middle school principal, Assistant Superintendent, and Special Education advisor to the network. JT started her career as a Teach For America corps member, teaching elementary school in New Orleans, Louisiana. She earned a BA in English modified with Studio Art at Dartmouth College and a M.Ed. in Special Education from Peabody College at Vanderbilt University. Outside of work, JT spends most of her time curating joyful adventures for her three young children, ages 2, 5, and 7.
